

The Adventures of Ann

CHAPTER VIII.

Harwood was at his niece's as he showed Ann the wonderful collection of treasures he had gathered in his travels about the world—priceless things that only men with unlimited wealth and an eye for art could collect. Rugs from mandarin palaces of China and ivory and pearls there were from the collections of the rajahs of India. The mysterious woman companion of Ann looked on at all this with a cynical smile, for she, too, had heard the same thing from Harwood, in other days—days that had gone and oh, how she wished they had never been. For she had been blind like many girls before her and many still to come, who think all that is necessary is to live in the present and that tomorrow will take care of the future—the future that turns back, for "tomorrow" isn't an interested book, unless you are on the job to boss him.

But to Ann in her glorious innocence it was all so real and beautiful. When Harwood spoke of her voice and how he was going to arrange for her to take singing lessons of the great Savoni, Ann thrilled with anticipation, for it never occurred to her why Harwood should take all this interest in her.

As Harwood's valet announced dinner he led them into the sumptuous dining room. That was like a fairy bower. The costly silver and rare glassware were so brilliant, the table cloth so white and soft, that Ann could not help but contrast both with those of her own dinner table at home.

Youth Admits He Shot And Killed Negro Taxi Driver

VICKSBURG, Miss., Sept. 12. (SPL.)—Henry C. Garrett, 19-year-old Copiah county youth, who shot and killed a negro chauffeur, John Cox, Aug. 27, and was arrested in Hazlehurst, where he was running Cox's automobile as a jitney, and brought back to this state, made a complete confession to County Attorney J. J. O'Neill late Thursday. The confession was given to the Court Reporter Hiram Zadek. His story corroborates the report published in the special dispatches to The News Scimitar. He said he knows he must be punished and asked what would be done to him.

Garrett said that he did not want to pay the negro Cox $15 charged for driving him to Clinton and back to Vicksburg, and shot Cox to get the machine. He shot him twice from behind, once while standing in front of the negro, and fired two or three times at him after he had pulled the negro from the car.

He said he had purchased a pint of "corn" in Vicksburg for $8, and had one drink left after killing the negro. It was reported today that "Bob" Miller, of Hazlehurst, will be employed to defend him. No date for a preliminary hearing has been fixed.

RESORT OWNER DIES.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 12. (SPL.)—Gabrielle, 72, proprietor of Gabrielle Springs, a noted East Tennessee resort, died suddenly last night at that place.

"That's right, little girl, don't ever touch it."

Harwood devoted all his attention to Ann, ignoring the mysterious woman almost completely. Harwood drank freely of the mellow, sparkling wine—his own special brand, with which his home was extravagantly stocked long before prohibition swept the country. Ann did not drink any. She never had and thought it best not to now. But Harwood just laughed and said, "That's all right, little girl, don't you ever touch it."

TENSE PRESSURE ON HER HEAD

"My Sides, Back and Head Pained Me Just All the Time," Says Alabama Lady, Who Took Cardui and Got Well.

Uniontown, Ala.—"After the birth of my baby, I came nearly dying," writes Mrs. Maude Felts, of Uniontown. "I was in an awful condition. . . . It just looked like I would die. I couldn't bear anyone to even touch me. I was so sore, not even to turn me in bed. My sides, back and head all pained me, just all the time. We had the doctor every day, and he did everything he knew how, it looked like. Yet I lay there suffering such intense pains as seems I can't describe. Finally, I said to my husband, let us try Cardui. . . . He went for it at once, and before I had taken the first bottle the . . . came back, the soreness began to go away, and I began to mend. The intense pressure seemed all at once to leave my head, and before long I was up. I took three bottles and was well and strong and able to do my work. I believed Cardui saved my life. . . . I can not praise it enough for what it did for me! If you are a woman, and need a tonic—Take Cardui, the Women's Tonic."

LOCAL DEALERS DECLARE MORE LOCAL WOMEN ARE INDULGING IN CIGARETS

Wanted—An inventive genius who can fashion cigar holders of sufficiently fantastic designs to meet demands of women's trade in the Memphis cigar and jewelry shops. "Cigaret sales are growing among Memphis women, which is proof that smoking is taking a firmer hold. The increase is very satisfactory to the cigar merchants, but it is becoming a thorn in the side of the reformers and the social workers. A canvass of the large cigar and tobacco stores reveals that within the past year the volume of business in the fragrant weed has increased enormously and that today it is a common thing for large orders for home use to be sent to various women through the city. With this comes another revelation, that of disappearance of the old type of cigar designed to attract the eye of the lady. The perfumed and much decorated brands are a drug on the market. Now they are calling for the standard brands and those kinds which have held a place on the library table in homes for years. Only now they are used by women and not alone by the male element of the house. In the sale of cigar holders, there is consternation. Women, according to a Main street dealer, are calling for fantastic shapes and lavish decorations. Then again they come to buy the holder and always forget to bring a cigar with the result they try to fit a No. 4 into a No. 6 holder or vice versa. This means exchanges and loss of time and money both by the merchant and lady. Reasons for the increase, as set forth by the merchants, are at variance. One dealer even blames prohibition and the absence of light wines, the weed taking its place. Another says it is the movies with their oft repeated "society" scenes where smoking is taken as a matter of course. No one suggested that it was just a fad and another way in which ladyhood can deplete her husband's financial resources. However, reasons or no reasons, smoking among women in Memphis is on the increase. Where it will end, no one dealer would dare predict.

Gets Disabilities Removed in Kentucky For Tennessee Crime

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 12. (SPL.)—Abe Jamison, of Hopkins county, Ky., convicted in Tennessee in 1925, and who served two years and six months on the charge of having shot to kill, was restored to citizenship by Gov. Edwin P. Morrow.

The question arose as to whether Jamison would have to be restored to citizenship by the governor of Tennessee, in which state he served the sentence, or by the governor of Kentucky. Attorney-General Dawson held that as Jamison was a resident of Kentucky, the restoration would have to come from the governor of Kentucky.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC EQUIPMENT SCATTERED

Out of 2,538 live stock cars owned by the Southern Pacific railroad, only 584 were on its lines July 1, and the remainder, 1,954 cars, were scattered among 121 other railroads in all sections of the country, from Maine to California, according to a bulletin sent out by officials to traffic representatives, urging that every effort be made to regain possession of the scattered equipment.

With less than one-fourth of its stock cars available, it was stated that the company was seriously embarrassed in its efforts to properly care for the requirements of the live stock industry along its lines. Some foreign lines were found to be using almost as many of the cars as the owning line had on its tracks. Efforts to obtain the return of its equipment had been most discouraging, it was said.

Railroad men say that as long as the car service section of the interstate commerce commission is allowed to arbitrarily control the distribution of freight cars, regardless of ownership, there will be little inducement for the carriers to build more cars. Under present conditions it is asserted, railroads that are short of equipment are permitted to retain the use of cars belonging to other lines that have much of their capital tied up in the cars, while the owning line must get along the best it can.
